

---

Persistenter Identifier: 485165864
Titel: Robinson The Younger
Autor: Campe, Joachim Heinrich
Wilmans, Friedrich
Lamminger, Johann Thomas
Ort: Bremen
Maße: XVI, 336, 170 Seiten, 4 ungezählte Seiten
Beschriftungen: camprobi
Signatur: AD 7945
Strukturtyp: Monograph
PURL: <http://goobiweb.bbf.dipf.de/viewer/image/485165864/1/>

---

They distinguished themselves, particularly by their pure, undissembled and active piety. Whenever they mention'd the name of God, joy and love for him sparkled in their eyes; and they shudder'd, when at any time others pronounced that holy name with levity and inconsiderateness. The blessing of heaven also crown'd all their undertakings in a visible manner. They attained to a great age, in peace, health and useful activity, and the latest posterity will honour the remembrance of two men, who were an example to their fellow creatures, how we must do, to live satisfied here and eternally happy hereafter.

---

Here the father stopt. The young company remain'd for some time sitting in a pensive posture, till at last the ardent thought: I will do so too! ripen'd into a firm resolution.